

Useful online security tips and articles

Published: 2026-03-01 · Archived: 2026-04-02 10:50:10 UTC

Functional cookies

These cookies are required for our website to work properly or by regulations that apply to us, and cannot be turned off. Among other things, they take care of secure login sessions to the My F-Secure service, storing your country of origin, and remembering the cookie preferences you select.

Performance cookies

These cookies help us collect statistics of how you and other customers use our website. We always look at aggregate data, and nothing about you, personally, is stored. Performance cookies also allow us to run A/B tests on our site and tailor its content based on your device type, for example.

Personalisation cookies

These cookies help us personalise the content and offers we provide to you, based on your usage of our website and other digital platforms. This ensures we can always offer you the content and information that benefits you the most.

Marketing cookies

These cookies are mostly set by advertisement platform providers such as Google or Facebook. They help us decipher, based on your actions on our site, which of our products, services, and offers are the most relevant for you. We use this data to tailor the ads you see on other websites.

Source: <https://blog.fsecure.com/a-hammer-lurking-in-the-shadows/>