

'Cyber Berkut' Hackers Target Major Ukrainian Bank

By The Moscow Times

Published: 2014-07-04 · Archived: 2026-04-05 13:52:15 UTC

In an act of cyber retribution, a group of pro-Russian hackers calling themselves the Kiberberkut have obtained and published customer information stolen from one of Ukraine's largest commercial banks, PrivatBank, a statement on the group's Vkontakte social network page said Friday.

PrivatBank in May became a target for pro-Russian separatists in Eastern Ukraine after the bank suspended its operations in the restive cities of Donetsk and Luhansk, and its co-owner — billionaire Igor Kolomoisky — was appointed head of the nearby Dnipropetrovsk region. One of his first acts as governor of the region was to place a $10,000 bounty on the heads of Russian "saboteurs" fighting in the region.

Kolomoisky even drew the notice of Russian President Vladimir Putin, who called him a "unique imposter" earlier this year, Reuters reported.

Kolomoisky in response described the Russian president as "a schizophrenic, short in stature."

The information published by Kiberberkut — or Cyber Berkut, a reference to the security forces that allegedly fired on anti-Russian Maidan protesters in Kiev in February on the orders of ousted Ukrainian President Viktor Yanukovich — includes such confidential information as passport data, account information and phone numbers.

Kiberberkut warned PrivatBank customers that their money is at risk and strongly recommended that they transfer their money to any state-owned bank.

"We are Kiberberkut! We will not forget! We will not forgive!" the group said on Vkontakte.

The group explained in a statement that they had analyzed the tactics of another hacking group, Green Dragon, who crippled PrivatBank's website on Monday with a distributed denial-of-service attack. Green Dragon claimed to have gained access to customers' account information, a statement that PrivatBank's press service denied.

"We take pride in responsibility for hacking PrivatBank owned by Kolomoisky who sponsors war campaign in Eastern Ukraine," Green Dragon tweeted in English on Monday.

Kiberberkut claims to have exposed gaps in PrivatBank's cyber security system and posted technical information on their Vkontakte page to prove the statement.

On Wednesday, Kiberberkut also published a list of mostly outdated customer information stolen from one of Privatbank's Russian subsidiaries — Moskomprivatbank, Gazeta.ru reported Friday.

See also:

Ukraine's Largest Bank Suspends Operations in Eastern Ukraine

A Message from The Moscow Times:

Dear readers,

We are facing unprecedented challenges. Russia's Prosecutor General's Office has designated The Moscow Times as an "undesirable" organization, criminalizing our work and putting our staff at risk of prosecution. This follows our earlier unjust labeling as a "foreign agent."

These actions are direct attempts to silence independent journalism in Russia. The authorities claim our work "discredits the decisions of the Russian leadership." We see things differently: we strive to provide accurate, unbiased reporting on Russia.

We, the journalists of The Moscow Times, refuse to be silenced. But to continue our work, we need your help.

Your support, no matter how small, makes a world of difference. If you can, please support us monthly starting from just $2. It's quick to set up, and every contribution makes a significant impact.

By supporting The Moscow Times, you're defending open, independent journalism in the face of repression. Thank you for standing with us.

$10 / month

$15 / month

Other

Continue

Not ready to support today?

Remind me later.

Source: <https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/07/04/cyber-berkut-hackers-target-major-ukrainian-bank-a37033>