About Us

MWR is an independent cyber security consultancy with research at the core of what we do. Solving our MEA clients' unique cyber security challenges and ensuring they are more resilient to cyber-attacks is why we exist and continue to exist.

MWR is renowned for its technical excellence and client-centric approach to solving cyber security challenges. From partnering with some of Africa's most renowned financial institutions, to advising large telecommunications and media corporations, our reputation of trust speaks for itself.

A Client Focus

MWR works alongside organisations and their requirements to develop a comprehensive understanding of strategic needs. This approach allows us to provide security solutions that empower our clients, rather than restrict them.

MEA Operating Focus

Headquartered in Johannesburg South Africa, MWR services clients across Africa and The Middle East. The focus on these regions and their unique cyber security challenges allows us to ensure that our service offering and research initiatives are tailored to our target market.

Technical Excellence

We'll never just fix the symptoms of a security issue, but will take the time to look for the root cause. Our integrity is fundamental to everything we do – we hate hype, abhor buzzwords and place an enormous emphasis on the outcomes our clients receive.

Research-led

We believe that being at the forefront of research drives the high level of service MWR offers. Our ability to invest time into new endeavours keeps our consultants on the leading edge of security and gives us a unique insight into the mind of the attacker.
